

Message from the Editor

It is an honor to present to you this special first issue of the newly founded refereed professional journal on education, sponsored by the Graduate School of Education, Assumption University, Thailand. This particular issue is specially printed to commemorate the 25th anniversary of Phi Delta Kappa (Thailand Chapter).

It has been a pleasure to read, edit and publish the innovative research findings contained in this journal. All the articles are research reports categorized according to the themes presented in the International Conference on Ethics vs Technology in Postmodern Era of Education, convened on September, 2008 at the main campus of Assumption University. The volume contains a great wealth and perspectives of mostly new researchers in Thailand and elsewhere.

During the next few years, the editorial leadership seeks to expand the representation of educational leadership related articles in the journal. In addition, we hope to maintain and further develop international involvement among both the authors and readership of the journal. This journal is not for sale, but is distributed free of charge to major universities around the world. Any parties interested to obtain a copy may write to the editor at pornchuleechv@au.edu.

The journal is published once annually after the conference organized in the first weekend of October. However, papers are accepted all year round.

I welcome any and all comments. And as our research reports cover three perspectives, namely, theoretical, empirical and practical, now is the great time for you to write up the innovations and successes of your academic works and submit for publication with us so as to share with your colleagues on a global basis.
